

Wilderness, Safaris & Jungle Cooking with celebrated
Chef Michael Swamy
and
Senior Pugdundee Naturalists
(10-13th October 2019)

Fondly known as “The Historian Chef” or “Chef Who Wears Many Hats”, Chef Michael Swamy is a celebrated Chef, author and a wildlife enthusiast. A keen passion for nature and wildlife has led Michael to creating the Cooking Wild workshop series, which combines food and nature and brings out the interconnection between them through the use of cooking techniques used by locals made using indigenous produce. He not only demonstrates cooking techniques, which are earthy and rustic, but also explains concepts like foraging, which goes a long way in saving the environment.

Have you ever heard the term “Forest Cooking”? Well that is exactly what you’ll learn on your next safari booking with Pugdundee Safaris. Learn about Forest barbeques, jungle techniques and bush cooking techniques made using indigenous produce in the Jungles of Central India with Pugdundee Safaris.

Pench Tree Lodge is the refuge of the au courant, adventurous and eco sensitive 'Mowgli'. Six well- appointed tree houses are perched in the undisturbed 16 hectares (40 acres) of forested area in the small 'Sarrahiri' village of Pench in the Karmajhiri area. If you want to be closer to the earth, there are six spacious and well-appointed cottages on offer. This is the first lodge to be set up in this underdeveloped zone and supports our conservation policy of not overcrowding areas and making them unsustainable with over exposure to tourism.

The famous Jungle Book character Mowgli was a wolf befriending boy from the tribal village of Pench. If Mowgli could enliven his escapades, Pench tree lodge would be his time warped home in 21st century. He could certainly somersault with the monkeys here or luxuriously laze under the shade of Mahua Tree, in the comforts of stylish, spacious and snugly tree houses set in regal landscapes. Later, deciding to set out on a Jeep Safari to meet 'Shere Khan'—the Tiger and 'Baloo'—the Bear and check on his troop of 'Bander log'— monkey folks and all other good old friends from Pench national park.
